

marketing assistant

- Help fund vital cancer research
- Join a best practice fundraising team
- Focus on delivering large scale events

Australian cancer research foundation (ACRF) is dedicated to funding world-class research in to the prevention, diagnosis and treatment of cancer.

Since 1984, ACRF has given over $71 million to breakthrough cancer research projects including the discovery of Cervical Cancer Vaccine released in 2007. Every dollar of every donation received goes to cancer research.

You will assist the General Manager of Business Development in coordinating strategic fundraising projects to ensure the new income targets and plans are achieved. Working within the fundraising team you will be involved in the organisation of large scale events and campaigns.

You're able to demonstrate marketing and project management achievements as well as highly developed communication and relationship management skills. You're from a marketing or PR environment in a not-for profit, corporate or agency setting with a good understand of database, administration, writing, presentation and web-based skills.

If working for one of Australia's leading cancer research Foundations is a career motivator please call Richard Green or Paula Baxter on 02 8243 0570 or send your resume to cv@ngorecruitment.com quoting 30814.

NGO
Recruitment
A division of Bradman Recruitment